New Employment Law Changes for 2024

The California Legislature passed a large slate of new employment laws that will become effective in 2024. Some of the highlights include a new cannabis law (passed in 2022) that will prohibit employers from discriminating against employees for off-site marijuana use. Also on the anti-discrimination front, Governor Newsom approved a law creating a presumption of employer retaliation if it takes adverse action against an employee within 90 days of the employee engaging in certain protected activities.

In the workplace violence realm, the Legislature passed a law requiring employers to develop workplace violence prevention plans. The law also imposes new recordkeeping obligations.

Regarding leaves of absence, the State will extend paid sick leave from three days (or 24 hours) to five days (or 40 hours) for employees.

Additionally, a new law will introduce protected leave for a reproductive loss, mandating up to five days of leave for events such as miscarriages or failed adoptions.

On the COVID-19 front, the 2020 workers' compensation presumption (of workplace transmission) terminates at the end of 2023, and the Labor Code provision requiring employers to notify employees of a COVID-19 exposure will also expire. Employers, however, will still be required under Cal-OSHA emergency regulations to notify employees and certain contractors of a workplace exposure.

Minako America Corporation dba Minco Construction Contract Matter

In November 2021, Metropolitan's Board awarded a $1,477,000 construction contract to Minako America Corporation dba Minco Construction (Minco) for the replacement of ozone power supply units at the Jensen plant. Following the construction contract award, staff received a notification from the State of California's Department of Industrial Relations that Minco Construction had been debarred effective September 27, 2021. Pursuant to the Labor Code and California Code of Regulations, Minco was disqualified from working on public works projects for a period of one year and was therefore unable to work on the project. Metropolitan submitted a claim for payment of $147,700 with Minco's surety under the terms of Minco's bidder's bond. Minco disputed the claim and said it would challenge any payment by the surety.

Following informal settlement discussions, in September 2023, Minco made a payment to Metropolitan in the amount of $100,000. In exchange for this payment, Metropolitan withdrew its claim for payment by Minco's surety in connection with the bidder's bond.
